Everyone often thinks about future. How will it be? Will the future be good? Well, the world is changing. I'm a dreamer. I dream, I believe and sometimes want my dreams to come true. But I have never thought about future seriously. However, I realize that if we want to know how our world will look, we must look both into the past and the present.

Firstly, the medicine. I think that in the future medicine will be so developed that doctors will produce "spare parts" that our body needs. They will be made of metal, plastic or other materials. I mean, maybe in the future people who don't have arms, will have full metal arms connected to their brains and will be able to do everything with their artificial arms? Or for example, people whose hearts don't work fine will have an automatic blood pump? I think that it will be very hard to find a person without anything artificial. I hope that scientists will make medicaments for the most dangerous and deadly diseases. Maybe cancer or AIDS won't scare anyone in future?

Next, the technology. Now our technology is really developed, but I think that in future it will be even better. I'm not going to write about iPhone 26, but about technology which helps people. How about a multilingual translator which will translate our words into different languages every time we talk? Or intelligent robots used as maids in our houses?

I'm also sure that every time someone makes something good, someone else will make something bad too. I think, in the future people will have high technology weapons, bombs etc. Tanks will ride very fast, bombs will be bigger and greater, and guns will always shoot our enemy.

Lastly, the people. Humanity. Now people are too lazy, or they are workaholics, too honest or too deceitful. Extremely different, they can't find the balance. Sometimes I meet people, who don't care about others. If they show attention, they want something instead. There are some people who want to help because they are good and decent but there always be someone who's gonna laugh at them. It hurts, when you see people bullying one another and you can do nothing. No matter if it's in real life or on the Internet bullying is bullying. I think that people won't change, unfortunately. Maybe I'm a pessimist? Maybe just a realist? I don't know. But I have a feeling that people will help each other, only if they benefit somehow or if something happens in future. Something... dreadful. Maybe plague? War? Let's think about that. But one thing is important – the future is in our hands. WE make future and If we want, we can change it.
