I have a dream

When I was a little child I dreamed to be a princess with a big palace. Now, when I am 15 years old, I am not interested in it. I have a lot of dreams like every teenager. Many of them won't be achieved and I am aware of this. But one of my hopes is the most important: In the future I will be a doctor, who won't only examine and write prescriptions but also go to helpless people and give them humanitarian aid.

I will go to Africa to support poor and ill people. I will help them and I will play different games with children. They will be very happy and they will smile a lot. I will build a big hospital where I will treat my patients. After a few years, I will go back to Poland and will establish a foundation, which will take care of African people. My foundation will be very popular and we will make a lot of money for my patients. After 2 years I will go back to my African's friends for good. My work will be necessary and appreciated by every person in Africa. Because of my dream, there won't be any hunger or disease on that continent.

I hope that my dreams will come true – although probably not all of them. I want to help people from Africa, because I learned and heard about them. I worry about their situation so I'll do everything to realize my dream.
