I'm sitting in my bedroom, staring out my window, and dreaming of what could be, what could be better.

I'm dreaming that people are better. We should treat other people with love, friendship and support. I would like everyone to love each other. We need love, we need support, empathy, help from the loved ones.

People change the world with their love. Love changes people. Will you start to love somebody tomorrow? How about next month or year? When will you start changing the world? Why don't you start now? Your smile can change the world. Just try!

I would like the world to be different, better..
