If someone is self-disciplined, he will manage to face every challenge. For example, while I was revising for historical competition, which was about II World War, in a short time I had to learn a lot of things. I had to give up my free time. I couldn't play computer games, although I like it very much. I knew that if I don't play, I will have more time to study. Every day, after doing homework I was learning about War.

Before starting learning I made a plan, I wrote topics to study each day. Every day I was learning something new. If I didn't make a plan, I wouldn't be able to learn everything about II World War.

After a few weeks of hard work, I took a test, and I managed to get to the next stage of the competition. With self-discipline we can do everything!
